

Inner Golf

This is the most personalized aspect of golf, the one which you already possess and bring with you to your game.

Don't trivialize this important aspect of the game by thinking in terms of outside "golf gods" who may have been good or not good to you on a particular round of golf.

Just as in your daily life you have developed an inner world and source of guidance, take that same awareness with you into your game of golf.

Clear your mind between shots and ask for guidance, and then listen to that inner voice which will tell you what adjustments to make, what clubs to use or what strategy to employ.

Discover the intimate source of guidance within yourself and then continue that relationship on the golf course. Have fun combining your inner world with the outside world of golf.

Developing your inner world is an integral component of golf magic. Allow it to be real for you.
